DESCRIPTIVE BLURB

Suran Song in Stag (pronounced SU-RAHN)

*Founded 1995

*Newest Release:

Kitty Igloo & The Plastic Stereo (June 2004)

*Back Catalog:

Cowboys & Indians (2001)

Pure Agitator (1999)

Shiny Objects (1997)

Influences ranging from Gang of Four, Carol King, The Go Gos, and Shonen Knife!

With colorful pluck, Suran Song in Stag's extra-melodic new songs and live cinematic visuals generate jujitsu knockouts to The Plastic Stereo (a dastardly console of Clear Channel, Halliburton, Bechtel, and Rupert Murdoch) and the cruel slogans it relentlessly spews: 'Enforce intimacy! Decorate punishment! Accelerate relaxation!' As the band faces off with robber-baron thugs, sleepy heads, and blue meanies, they find friends along the way living in all things kawaii (the Japanese term for the hyper-cute), in shadows of empty drawing rooms, in sparkly things such as snow, in swinging chandeliers, in old T.V. shows like "The Avengers", and in the twilight haze of forests.

Optimistic, wholesome, and sentimental, Kitty Igloo & The Plastic Stereo maps a techni-color supernatural world where cuddly creatures, floating round moon-heads, and scenes of innocent pastimes are foreground to thieving politicians, sleeping giants, and ravenous databases. Martin Bisi (Lydia Lunch, Brian Eno, Sonic Youth, Cop Shoot Cop) serves as producer. Suran Song in Stag
